REDDIT PRESENCE, MANAGED

Your buyers have already decided who they trust. They just haven't found you yet.

RAMP builds your brand's presence in the Reddit communities where B2B buyers ask each other who to trust — while your competitors are already in those conversations. You approve every piece of content before it reaches a community. By the time a buyer reaches your website, the work is already done.

§ THE PROBLEM

THE CONVERSATION YOU'RE MISSING

Before your buyers talk to sales, they're asking strangers what to think.

Reddit is where those conversations happen — the single highest-density source of B2B practitioner opinion on the internet. It's where AI models like ChatGPT and Perplexity draw from when buyers ask questions in your category. Right now, your competitors may be in those conversations. Your brand might not be.

●Legal: "competitors may be" not "are" — do not overstate competitive presence●No mechanism language: no "avatars", "personas", "accounts", "automated"

§ WHY RAMP WORKS DIFFERENTLY · v1.1 rewrite — practitioner lens

WHY RAMP WORKS DIFFERENTLY

Every decision in this platform was made because we've seen what happens when you do it the other way.

① PROTECTION

Your brand is never directly in the execution layer

We've watched brands post from their own accounts, get flagged by a moderator with a grudge, and spend months dealing with reputational fallout. You approve. We deliver. Your name stays clean.

② CREDIBILITY

Credibility is built before your brand gets near a conversation

The fastest path to a Reddit mention is not the path that produces a mention worth having. We know this because we've run the experiment. RAMP enforces the sequence that actually works — and automates the discipline so clients can't accidentally skip it.

③ INTELLIGENCE

Community intelligence built by hand before it was built into software

The keyword framework and thread-scoring logic came from mapping how B2B buyers actually talk when evaluating tools. That practitioner foundation is what makes the platform generate content that sounds like a community member, not a marketer.

●v1.1 rewrite: "We've watched", "we've run the experiment" — practitioner voice, not feature-list●Three equal columns. Bold last sentence in each pillar = key claim. Dark bg: #1C1C2E. ●No "guarantee", "zero risk", "undetectable", "stealth" anywhere in this section

§ BUILT BY — NEW SECTION v1.1 · Insert between Phase Arc and Who It's For

WHY THE PLAYBOOK IS THIS SPECIFIC

RAMP wasn't designed in a product meeting. It was built from the experience of actually doing this.

"Most Reddit marketing tools are built by engineers who understand platforms. RAMP was built by people who understand communities — specifically, the difference between a comment that lands and one that gets you flagged, between a voice that earns community trust and one that gets called out within the hour."

The phase system isn't a product constraint. It's the distilled lesson from watching brands skip the credibility-building stage and pay for it publicly. The keyword framework isn't AI-generated — it's the result of mapping how buyers in specific B2B verticals actually talk when they're researching, not when they're being sold to. The approval workflow exists because we've seen what happens when content goes out without it.

This is operationalized practitioner knowledge. The platform enforces what we know works — and prevents what we know doesn't.

Community depth before platform access

Built on understanding how Reddit communities reward and reject — not just how the API works.

Phase system = the manual playbook

Phase-gated brand integration is the lesson from experience, enforced as a product rule.

136 keywords mapped manually

The intelligence layer starts with practitioner judgment, not algorithmic defaults.

§ PHASE ARC · v1.1 – reframed intro copy

THE APPROACH

We don't start with your brand.
That's the point.

§ AEO / GEO ANGLE · First-mover claim. No competitor owns this coherently.

THE AI SEARCH ANGLE

When someone asks AI about your category, the answer is built from community conversations.

"When someone asks ChatGPT which cybersecurity platform is worth considering, the answer isn't built from your website — it's built from conversations. We make sure yours are in there."

AI search doesn't read press releases. It reads the places where practitioners talk honestly — subreddits, forums, community threads. Reddit is the single most cited source in ChatGPT responses. The brands building credibility in those communities today are accumulating an asset that later entrants cannot buy retroactively.

RAMP builds your presence in those conversations now. Not because you can guarantee an AI citation — but because the window to be in the source material is open today, and it won't stay that way.

●Legal: "enable AI citation", never "guarantee AI citation" or "will appear in AI results"●Section bg: subtle signal blue wash rgba(37,99,196,0.06). Blockquote in DM Serif italic.

§ APPROVAL MODEL · v1.1 – expertise framing added. Most important section for Sarah (PMM).
THE APPROVAL MODEL

Nothing goes live without your approval. That's not a feature — it's the model.

Every piece of content that carries proximity to your brand goes through your review queue before it reaches any community. This is the architecture, not an option.

We map your landscape

Your onboarding begins with the Reddit Landscape Report — a full competitive analysis of which communities matter in your category, where your competitors have standing, and where your brand has none. This becomes the strategic foundation for everything that follows.

We develop the community strategy

Based on your category, competitors, and brand positioning, RAMP defines which communities to build presence in, which conversations to enter, and what the voice strategy looks like. You review and approve the strategy before anything begins.

Every piece of content comes to you first

Content is generated, reviewed internally for quality and brand alignment, then sent to you for approval. You see everything before it reaches a community. You can edit, reject, or approve. Nothing goes out without your sign-off. The platform learns your preferences over time — improving quality with every cycle.

Our managed infrastructure handles delivery

Once approved, content is delivered through our managed posting infrastructure at optimal timing. You never post directly. Your brand is never in the execution layer. If anything goes wrong operationally, your name is not attached to it.

"Generic AI content is the most detectable thing on Reddit. Communities that have been marketing targets for years have pattern-matched it precisely. The approval workflow exists not just as a brand safety measure — but because the content that goes through human review is the content that actually earns community standing."

The approval workflow is the primary conversion mechanism for the PMM persona. Every edit a client makes trains the system — quality compounds over time.

4-step workflow. Step 3 is the most important – emphasise it visually (slightly more padding, maybe signal blue left border).
Step 4: "managed infrastructure" = approved language. Never "automated posting", "bot infrastructure".The callout block is new v1.1 expertise addition. DM Serif italic. Do not cut.

§ PHASE DISCIPLINE · v1.1 rewrite – "the lesson" not "the constraint"

THE PHASE APPROACH

The phase system isn't a constraint.
It's the lesson.

Reddit communities are not marketing channels. They are reputation systems. The moment a voice appears that doesn't belong — that hasn't earned the right to be in the conversation — the community notices. Not eventually. Immediately.

We know this because we've seen it happen. To brands that moved too fast, agencies that prioritised volume over credibility, and tools that optimised for comment count over community standing. The RAMP phase system exists because of what we've seen fail. Phase 1 builds the standing that makes Phase 3 possible. There are no shortcuts — and the platform enforces this automatically.

PHASE 1 · MONTH 1-2

Credibility Building

Genuine community participation. No brand proximity. The goal is standing — not mentions. Community trust is built by contributing value before any brand appears.

No brand mentions — by design

Karma growth. Engagement rates. A presence where there was none. Leading indicator for Phase 3.

PHASE 2 · MONTH 3-4

Content Seeding

Industry conversations entered. Original content posted. Brand-adjacent positioning established as a credible community voice — not as a brand account.

Category voice, no brand

Share of voice shifting. Category conversations now include voices that understand your positioning.

PHASE 3 · MONTH 5+

Brand Integration

Contextual brand mentions in buying-signal threads. Competitor displacement in high-intent conversations. Carried by voices the community already trusts.

Brand mentions begin

Brand mentions that land as recommendations. SOV delta vs Day 1. AI search surface area building.

"Why can't we skip to Phase 3? Because Phase 3 depends on Phase 1. A brand mention carried by a voice with two months of community standing lands as a recommendation. The same mention from a new account lands as spam — and Reddit communities are very good at knowing the difference."

Phase eligibility is automated and enforced by the platform. Clients cannot override phase gates. This is a moat, not a UX decision.

•v1.1 intro: "we've seen it happen" – practitioner knowledge, not product constraint framing.•Phase gates are non-negotiable. Do not add any "accelerate" or "skip" UI affordance. •"Brand Integration" is the approved name for Phase 3. Not "promotion", "marketing", "outreach".

|----------------|----------------|------------------|-----------------------|---------------------|
| Agency Starter | $999/month    | Up to 3 clients  | $2,500–3,500/client  | $6,500–9,500       |

§ EXPERTISE LAYER · v1.1 NEW – addresses "will my client notice this is commodity work?"

WHY YOUR CLIENTS WILL NOTICE THE DIFFERENCE

Built by people who understand communities. Not just platforms.

Most white-label Reddit providers build their service on volume. More comments, more accounts, more subreddits. The problem is that Reddit communities measure quality in upvotes and thread depth — and a comment that gets ignored or removed is worse than no comment at all.

"Built by people who understand communities, not just platforms. That's why the output doesn't get flagged."

RAMP is built on deep practitioner knowledge of how Reddit communities actually function — which subreddits, which threads, which angles work for which verticals. Not from an algorithm that treats all communities the same. This is what justifies the price your client pays. Not the comment count. The quality of the community standing being built — and the fact that it compounds over time into something they couldn't have built themselves.

COMMODITY PROVIDERS

Use the same generic accounts across all categories. Post at maximum frequency from day one.

RAMP

Builds community voices trained on the specific vertical. Enforces a phase system that builds standing before brand proximity.

WHY IT MATTERS TO YOUR CLIENT

First brand mention arrives in a community that already trusts the voice carrying it. Content survives moderation. Investment doesn't disappear overnight.

●v1.1 NEW. Answers Marcus's unasked question: "Will my client notice this is commodity work?"●Three-col comparison: left=commodity, centre=RAMP (blue tint), right=client outcome (green label)

§ HOW IT WORKS FOR AGENCIES · White-label mechanics

HOW IT WORKS FOR AGENCIES

Your clients never need to know who runs the back-office. Unless you want them to.

You own the client relationship

RAMP operates as your invisible fulfillment layer. Reports carry your agency brand. The dashboard is accessed through your login. Your clients interact only with you.

You control what clients see

Three modes: fully invisible (client never knows the platform exists), read-only client access to branded reports, or semi-managed where the client reviews content under your oversight. You choose per client.

You keep the asset

The community credibility built for a client stays in your account — not theirs. If the client relationship ends, the built presence doesn't transfer. You built it. You retain it.

You approve the content

All content goes through your approval queue before it ever reaches a community. Full chain of review. Nothing goes live without sign-off.

●"You keep the asset" = strongest agency retention argument. Emphasise visually.●"Community credibility" = approved language. Never "account karma", "avatar history" in client-facing copy.

§ THREE AGENCY ARCHETYPES

THREE WAYS TO OPERATE RAMP

Choose how visible RAMP is to your clients.

Silent Operator

Zero client visibility

Your agency is the only brand the client sees. Full white-label: reports, dashboard, and communications carry your agency name only. RAMP is completely invisible.

Best for: Agencies who want maximum margin and zero vendor exposure risk.

Agency Starter · $999/mo · Bill client $2,500–3,500/mo

Co-Pilot

Read-only client access

Client receives monthly reports under your agency brand. They see outcomes, not the back-office. Transparency builds client trust while you maintain full control.

Best for: Agencies who want transparency to deepen client relationships.

Agency Growth · $1,999/mo · Bill client $3,000–4,000/mo

Reseller

Semi-managed by client

Client uses a review interface branded as your agency platform. You retain strategic control and escalation authority. Client feels ownership; you hold the infrastructure.

Best for: Agencies who sell the oversight and relationship layer.

Agency Scale · $3,499/mo · Bill client $3,500–5,000+/mo

●Co-Pilot card featured (purple border). Most popular archetype for mid-size agencies.●Client visibility badges: red=none, blue=read-only, purple=semi. Distinct colors intentional.

§ WHAT YOU'RE SELLING

WHAT YOU'RE ACTUALLY SELLING

You're not adding Reddit to your menu.
You're adding the channel your clients keep asking for.

Your clients already know Reddit matters. 72% of B2B decision-makers use it for vendor research. Most of your clients' competitors are already there. When a client asks "can you do Reddit?" — RAMP is how you say yes, deliver it professionally, and make a margin on it.

$ PRE-WARMED VOICE UPSELLS

REDUCE TIME TO FIRST BRAND MENTION

Pre-warmed community voices.

Faster path to Phase 3.

Assign community voices with established standing to reduce the time before Phase 3 brand integration can begin. Available as one-time additions to any plan.

§ FAQ

COMMON QUESTIONS

Before you book a call.

What's included in the Day 1 Landscape Report?

A competitive share-of-voice analysis showing which communities matter in your category, where competitors have standing, where your brand is invisible, and which conversations contain buying signals. Delivered within 48 hours of onboarding.

How long before we see brand mentions?

Phase 1 focuses on community credibility — not brand mentions. This takes 2-3 months depending on community velocity. Phase 3 brand integration typically begins at month 5. Gold pre-warmed voice upsells can reduce this significantly.

Can we skip phases if we want faster mentions?

No. Phase eligibility is enforced automatically. This is why RAMP clients' brand mentions mean something when they happen — they arrive in communities that already trust the voice carrying them.

Do we ever post directly?

No. You approve content through the platform. Our managed infrastructure handles delivery. Your brand is never directly in the execution layer.

What happens to our presence if we cancel?

Community standing built during your subscription persists — Reddit communities don't reset. The ongoing benefits continue, though without active engagement they decay over time.

●FAQ Q3: "Phase eligibility is enforced automatically" — do not soften. Non-negotiable product rule.●FAQ Q4: "managed infrastructure handles delivery" = approved. Never "automated posting system".

§ HERO

YOUR DAY 1 LANDSCAPE REPORT

Your competitor is mentioned in threads your buyers are reading. Here's which ones.

The Reddit Landscape Report maps your category's community conversations — where your competitors have standing, where buying decisions are forming, and where your brand is currently invisible. Delivered within 48 hours. No commitment required.

●Headline is the strongest Alex hook: "your competitor is mentioned in threads your buyers are reading." Specific, competitive, personal.
●"Your brand is currently invisible" = approved. Never "your brand is losing" or comparative claims.

WHAT YOU'LL RECEIVE

Four intelligence layers. Delivered in 48 hours.

Competitor Share of Voice

- Which community voices carry your competitors' names across your target subreddits
- Estimated SOV percentage per competitor vs. your current zero-baseline
- Threads where competitor recommendations appeared in the last 90 days

High-Intent Thread Inventory

- Active threads where buyers are evaluating tools in your category
- Threads with explicit buying signals ("which tool should I use", "is X worth it")
- Communities with the highest density of your ICP

Brand Visibility Gap Analysis

- Communities where your brand is invisible
- Gap between your current presence and competitor presence
- Estimated competitive cost of that visibility gap

Keyword & Conversation Map

- The exact language your buyers use when they're in research mode
- Topic clusters that signal buying intent in your category
- Content angles that earn community trust vs. those that get ignored

§ EARLY ACCESS NOTE

"Product direction is shared with clients before it becomes public. If you're interested in early access to specific features, let us know during onboarding."

This line converts curious visitors into warm leads. It implies there's more to know — without revealing anything operationally sensitive.
